

VAM FUNDS (LUX) - US MICRO CAP GROWTH FUND

E CLASS – JULY 2023

Marketing communication / Financial promotion

Objective and Investment Policy

The investment objective of the Compartment is to achieve long-term capital appreciation. This is achieved through exposure to a basket of listed equity securities of US micro-capitalisation companies usually with a market capitalisation of less than $300 million on initial investment. The Compartment is actively managed and the strategy of the Compartment is growth oriented. This means it identifies and invests in stocks of companies with perceived future earnings growth potential.

There can be no assurance that the investment objective will be achieved or that there will be a return on capital.

Key Features

- Employs Driehaus' proven investment approach of identifying companies exhibiting accelerating earnings growth
- Invests in America's fastest growing small companies
- Particular expertise in tech, biotech and health care companies
- PM team with 20-year track record

Profile of Typical Investor

The Compartment is suitable for investors seeking long-term growth through capital appreciation and who want to participate in the long-term growth of the US economy. It is also suitable for investors wishing to diversify their investment portfolios, who are comfortable with and understand the risks of investing in the stock market, who have an investment horizon of at least five to seven years, and who seek investment opportunities in the US equity markets.

Risk and Reward Profile

This risk and reward indicator illustrates where the Class is positioned in terms of its possible risk and reward. The higher the Class's position on this scale, the greater the possible reward, but also the greater risk of losing money. This risk indicator is calculated using historical data, which cannot be used as a prediction for the future. Therefore, the risk classification may change over time. Even if the Class is in the lowest risk class you can lose money, as no investments are entirely risk-free.

The risk and reward indicator has been calculated using simulated historical performance data, which may not be a reliable indicator of the Class's future risk and reward profile.

This Class is in category 7 since the price changes of the Class have been high in the past.

The value of these shares is exposed to high volatility, which means that this value may be subject to high variations both upward and downward that may create important short-term latent losses.

Main inherent risks of the Compartment:

Liquidity risk: Some of the assets of the Compartment may become difficult to sell at a certain time and for a reasonable price.

Glossary

Alpha: Typically refers to the excess return of a strategy relative to returns available in the broader market.

Beta: Leverage, which measures the level of a company's debt to its equity.

Standard Deviation: Refers to a measure of the average deviations of a return series from its mean; often used as a measure of portfolio volatility. A large standard deviation implies that there have been large swings or volatility in the Manager's return series.

Consumer Discretionary: Goods and services that are considered non-essential by consumers, but desirable if their available income is sufficient to purchase them.

Consumer Staples: Goods and services most people need to live regardless of the state of the economy.

Information Ratio: A measurement of portfolio returns beyond the returns of a benchmark, usually an index, compared to the volatility of those returns.

Median Market Cap: The midpoint of market capitalisation (market price multiplied by the number of shares outstanding) of the stocks in a portfolio. Half the stocks in the portfolio will have higher market capitalizations; half will have lower.

R-Squared: The percentage of a fund or security's movements that can be explained by movements in a benchmark index. For example, an R-squared for a fixed-income security versus a bond index identifies the security's proportion of price movement that is predictable based on a price movement of the index.

Sharpe Ratio: Ratio used to help investors understand the return of an investment compared to its risk. The ratio is the average return earned in excess of the risk-free rate per unit of volatility or total risk. It is a measure of marginal profitability per unit of risk. When it is positive, the higher it is, the more risk taking is remunerated. A negative Sharpe ratio does not necessarily mean that the portfolio has had a negative performance but that it has been lower than a risk-free investment.

Tracking Error: The difference between the performance of a stock or mutual fund and its benchmark.

Weighted Average Market Cap: A type of stock market index construction that is based on the market capitalization of the index's constituent stocks. Large companies would thus account for a greater portion of an index than small-cap stocks.

Active Share: represents the share of portfolio holdings that differ from the benchmark index holdings.
